

WATER WAGON WINE NOW AT
WHITE HOUSE AND CABINET.Bryan Serves Unfermented Juices to Diplomats—Others
Follow Suit.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, is adhering to his lifetime role of taboos on strong drinks. He gave a dinner to the diplomatic corps last night, and served unfermented juices instead of wine. The red color was in the glass, but the alcohol was not there.

The diplomats tasted, then looked amazed. Mr. Bryan has always been a temperate and a temperance man. He does not believe in serving them to others. Unfermented juices and beverages are the rule in the Democratic Administration. At the dinner given by Representative Robert N. Page of North Carolina to Walter H. Page, Ambassador to England, a non-alcoholic punch, which Mrs. Robert N. Page recommended, was served instead of wine. Other dinners given by Cabinet members have been served without champagne or other wines.
